however, he had found that double spacing is easier to read and quite a time saver. After some discussion the Director asked those present to think about this proposal and directed Mr. [REDACTED] to raise it at the Deputies' Meeting on 11 June.

a. Noted that [REDACTED] had asked him to participate in the preparation of a long range study with respect to plutonium produced by reactors. The Director approved and suggested that DD/I touch base with [REDACTED] on this.

Col. White:

a. Noted that the Director might receive another call from Senator Bridges urging that the firm of [REDACTED] be employed as consulting architects for our new building. Col. White said that [REDACTED] had made it clear they had so reduced their fee that it would be impossible for them to allot any money for consultants and further that they had sufficient trained people to handle any problems that might arise in connection with our new building. [REDACTED] would have no objection to employing consulting architects should their fee be increased to support this additional expense.

b. Noted he had received a letter from Gen. Anderson, Virginia Commissioner of Highways, indicating he would be glad to see the Director any time for the purpose of discussing roads at the Langley site. The Director said he would try to go to Richmond next week. Mr. Kirkpatrick suggested that the Director make it a point to stop at the [REDACTED] Office there. The Director said he would do this.

[REDACTED]

Noted that we are having a good deal of difficulty particularly with the Department of Justice over the surfacing of [REDACTED] 25X1A2d1 The Director said he would call Mr. Murphy in State about this and arrangements have been made for the DCI to see Mr. [REDACTED] before this call is made. In connection with the defectors, the Director referred to the blood, sweat and tears which had been shed over working out how they would be handled and noted his intention of raising this at an early IAC meeting. After a conversation with Mr. [REDACTED] CIA Defector Coordinator, the Director decided not to raise this subject before the IAC at this time.
